Mr. Allen W. Dulles

Washington, D. C. 20007

Dear Mr. Dulles,

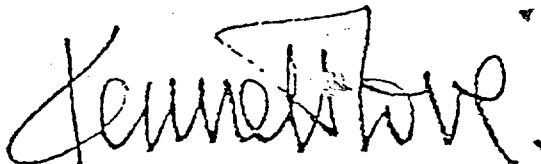

Enclosed is a copy of the paper on the overthrow of Mossadegh which I promised to send you. It is a Xerox of a carbon which I have, so you are welcome to keep it if it is any use to you.

The tank incident comes near the end. As I recall, the Iranian captain in charge of the tank detachment was named Ehteshamee or Ekhteshamee, a small, slim, earnest, friendly officer.

I am sorry the piece is so flimsy. Skimming over it again reminds me that I wrote it in haste while simultaneously doing other research papers for other courses. Incidentally, I was at the time the Carnegie Press Fellow of the Council on Foreign Relations, which is the best journalism fellowship I know of.

Although we did not uncover much hard historical material on Suez, I found our talk on Monday agreeable and interesting and I thank you for your hospitality.

Sincerely yours,

Kennett Love.
